Vessel Highlights:

- Code Zero- Is a very large cross between a genoa and an asymmetrical spinnaker that is used for sailing close to the wind in very light air. It is a tight reaching sail, the most downwind capable of the asymmetrics. The luff is as straight as possible, and the sail is flatter than other spinnakers. Due to the flatness of the code 0, it is usually made with a wire luff for strength, and of a heavier, less stretchy fabric than normal for a spinnaker. Due to the tight luff and flat cut, the Code Zero can be fitted for roller furling. Being made of much lighter weight material, the foot of a Code Zero can be almost the same length as the boat, and will fill in the faintest of zephyrs. These sails are a must for distance races, like the Volvo Ocean Race as shown on Puma Racing below.
- Stack Pack- is a popular adaptation of a standard mainsail cover that is used in conjunction with lazy jacks to make dousing and covering a mainsail quick and easy.
- Fully battened Mainsail with strong sail track system, two reefing points, and both headsails on roller furlers, all of which can be controlled from the cockpit. This set up makes this vessel a single handed sailors dream.
- Just bottom painted with all 7 thru hulls replaced while on the hard.
- Heart Interface Inverter
- Solar power
- Large House battery bank comprised of 4D AGM batteries.
